ISMP Canada Workshop

Going beyond the numbers: Using incident reports to assess medication safety culture

Wednesday, June 3, 2015

9:00 a.m. - 3:00 p.m.

A Novel Approach to Understanding Patient Safety Culture from Medication Incidents

Program Abstract:

This workshop teaches healthcare professionals how to use medication incident reporting as an indicator to monitor patient safety culture within their organization. Participants will learn fundamental principles of medication incident reporting and patient safety culture. These concepts will be integrated to introduce a novel tool called the Medication Safety Cultural Indicator Matrix (MedSCIM), which is a Qualitative Assessment Scale (QAS). MedSCIM was developed to measure patient safety culture in healthcare settings. This interactive workshop uses hands-on activities to teach participants how to use MedSCIM. In the end, participants will become confident using MedSCIM to support a positive patient safety culture.

Participants will be asked to bring in 10 – 20 medication incidents (de-identified) from their practice in order to conduct the hands-on activities. Through the application of the MedSCIM, participants will have the opportunity to integrate their learning through hands-on analysis and interpretation of incidents from their own practices using an innovative approach.

Learning Objectives:

1. Understand the potential for misinterpreting medication incident reporting in supporting patient safety initiatives
2. Review current methods to measure patient safety culture
3. Recognize current gaps in measuring patient safety culture
4. Describe the role of medication incident reporting in measuring patient safety culture
5. Apply a novel assessment tool to measure patient safety culture by analyzing medication incidents
